HOW TO CHOOSE A PROVIDER

When choosing a mental health provider, it is important to match your needs with the skills, expertise and training of the provider. When seeking help, it is often useful to ask providers about their experience in working with your area of concern. While many providers work with a variety of problems, some specialize in specific areas. This catalog lists some of these specialties, but is not intended to be a definitive list of specialties and areas of expertise. The catalog is designed to be a starting point in finding a provider. Referrals from family, friends, or other trusted resources are also useful when choosing a provider. There are several different types of mental health professionals to choose from. The list below provides the most common types of mental health credentials.

Licensed Chemical Dependency Counselor (LCDC) is licensed by the State of Texas to provide chemical dependency counseling. These counselors receive specialized training in the treatment of individuals and families that are trying to overcome problems related to alcohol and drug abuse. Counselors with only the LCDC are limited to providing treatment for substance abuse and are not able to provide mental health therapy.

Licensed Clinical Social Worker (LCSW) is licensed by the State of Texas to provide therapy for individuals and families with mental health problems. (Some clinicians with this license are listed as LMSW or LCSW.) They typically have a minimum of a Master's Degree in Social Work. These therapists are able to work with a variety of problems, including mental health, substance abuse, couples, and family problems.

Licensed Marriage and Family Therapists (LMFT) is licensed by the State of Texas to provide marriage and family therapy. These therapists typically have a minimum of a Master's Degree and receive specialized training in working with couples, families, and systems. These therapists are also able to work with individuals who struggle with a variety of problems, including mental health, substance abuse, couples and family problems.

Licensed Professional Counselor (LPC) is licensed by the State of Texas to provide therapy services to both individuals and families. These therapists typically have a minimum of a Master's Degree and receive a variety of training in the treatment of mental health issues. They are able to work with a variety of problems, including mental health, substance abuse, couples and family problems.

Psychologist (PhD) is licensed by the State of Texas to provide therapy services to individuals, couples and families. They have a Doctor of Psychology. In addition to providing therapy services to people with mental health and substance abuse issues, many psychologists also provide a variety of psychological testing services.

Psychiatrist (MD) is a licensed Medical Doctor who specializes in the treatment of mental disorders. Psychiatrists are licensed to prescribe medications for their clients. While psychiatrists can provide therapy services to their clients, most focus primarily on medication management and prefer to refer their clients to other professionals for therapy.
